President Says League Will Make War Improbable

from their government at home, and that what we united in advising we could be certain that our people would desire to do.

"There is in that covenant not one note of surrender of the independent judgment of the government of the United States, but an oppression of it, because that independence judgment would have to join with the judgment of the rest.

"But when is that judgment going to be expressed, my fellow citizens? Only after it is evident that every other resource has failed. And I want to call your attention to the central machinery of the league of nations. If any members of that league, or any nation not a member, refuse to submit the question at issue, either to arbitration, or to discussion by the council, there ensues automatically, by the engagements of this covenant, and absolute economic boycott. There will be no trade with that nation by any member of the league; there will be no interchange of communication by post or telegraph; there will be no travel to or from that nation; its borders will be closed; no citizen of any other State will be allowed to enter it and no one of its citizens will be allowed to leave it. It will be hermetically sealed by the united action of the most powerful nations in the world, and if this economic boycott bears with unequal weight, the members of the league agree to support one another and to relieve one another in any exceptional disadvantages that may arise out of it. And I want you to realize that this war was won, not only by the armies of the world, but it was won by economic means as well. Without the economic means the war would have been much longer continued. What happened was that Germany was shut off from the economic resources of the rest of the globe and she could not stand it; and a nation that is boycotted is a nation that is in sight of surrender. Apply this economic, peaceful, silent, deadly remedy, and there will be no need for force.

The answer given the Senate Committee by the Governor, W. P. G. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, to their query as to what legislation was needed at this time and to relieve the financial situation, was: "The Federal Reserve Board believes that any currency legislation at this time is unnecessary and undesirable and would suggest that whether viewed from an economic or financial standpoint, the remedy for the present situation is the same: Namely, 'Work and Save.'"

Mr. Harding is a man of acknowledged ability, with an opportunity of studying from every angle our industrial and financial problems; a study that includes in its scope the financial affairs of the world. Mr. Harding's interpretation of the sign of the times must be given earnest consideration and careful study. Such opinions as his merit consideration.

The real and true basic principle of the thrift campaign this year is arresting the attention of the American public to the end that it adopt as a habit the ideas and the thoughts of systematic saving. This is the central thought of every plan, the motive of every act. It takes time, patience and the co-operation of every branch of our industrial and our financial interests.

The people have got to spend less and save more. The banks occupy a peculiarly important position in spreading this message, because all business revolve about the banks. The people naturally turn to them for advice and it is right they should.

The people can save. Universal money is dissipated too easily and is wasted too often. If the money is in the pocket, that new luxury really not needed, is usually gotten; for it is easy to convince ones self that it is good business to buy the thing one wants. Invested money earns interest. It is not so easily spent and it encourages the saving of more.

If bankers and financiers will en-

$10.40 for each person living in this country, figuring on the basis of 100,000,000 population. The national debt of the United States on June 1, 1919 was $25,421,151,270. This simply means that every person in the United States faces a national debt that averages $231.10. If conditions that have become so radically changed by this so greatly increased debt are to become in any wise normal they can come in just one way—the absorption of this bonded debt by the savings of the people.
